[Shakspeare-Quarto Facsimiles, No. 22.]

INTRODUCTION.

§ 1. Two writers, if not three, shared the authorship of Pericles. The last three acts shew more like Shakspeare's work, while the first two are plainly inferior. Differences that at once strike the attention are, among others, (i.) scarcity of rymed couplets in the latter part, frequency of rymes in the first part: (ii.) frequency in the earlier part of awkward phrases, of crabbed and involved constructions; e.g., I. ii., 93, 'mine if-I-may-call offence'; II., chor: 17-22; iii., 47; and I. vi., 21-32, where the writer's rhetoric was too much for his syntax, and the principal sentence is left without any predicate. And there are other marks peculiar to this first part which will be noticed presently.

We must not, however, hastily assume that Shakspeare workt up an old play. Collier, indeed, thought this was so, and produced evidence of the existence of such a work from the Alleyn papers at Dulwich. In an Inventory of Theatrical Costumes made during the last decade of the 16th century, he said he found the entry "spangled hoes for Pericles." But G. F. Warner, who catalogued the Dulwich College muniments in 1881, states that the words "for Pericles" have been introduced in attempted imitation of the original by the same hand as added "for Leir," "Romeos," "in Dido" against other articles in the list; all which spurious items appear in the list as printed by Collier in his "Memoirs of Edward Alleyn," though he says nothing about the difference of hand.¹ There is, in fact, no evidence of the existence of the play before 1607-8, a date to which metrical evidence also would bring it, as well as the characteristics noted in § 3.

Shakspeare's unfinished work, extant in the last three acts of our play, was made up into five acts by a writer who added the short-lined Gower choruses, and spun Acts I. and II. partly out of ideas suggested in the old story, partly from suggestions in the three Acts before him, and partly from ideas which he got from the Arcadia and other sources. This writer, Delius² found, was George Wilkins, a little-known author, who had published about 1605 a prose pamphlet The three Miseries of Barbary; in 1607 a play The Miseries of Inforced Marriage (play'd, the title tells us, by his Maiesties servants); and who in 1608 dedicated to Sir Henry Fermor, of Buckinghamshire, his farrago professing to represent our play, and entitled The painfull adventures of Pericles prince of Tyre; besides having had a share in The Travailes of the three English Brothers,³ the preface to which he signs, along with John Day and W. Rowley, on its appearance in print in 1607.

§ 2. A comparison of Wilkins's novel with the play is disappointing to a seeker for materials by which to correct or complete the Quartos of the play. Out of 28 pages of the story, 18 give a fairly close version of the incidents—and of a good many of the speeches—of the first two Acts of the play, being at the rate of nine pages per Act. Of the remaining 28 pages of the story, some ten represent the 3rd and 4th Acts, but with many variations, especially Act IV., sc. i.,—the Leonine scene,—and

² Shakspeare Jahrbuch, 1868, pp. 175-204. But Delius overlooks the point that Wilkins was the completer (save the mark!) of Shakspeare's work, and supposed Wilkins's work to have been the earlier.

³ 'Played at the Curten in Shoreditch by her Maiesties servants': Queen Anne adopted the Earl of Worcester's players in 1603.

sc. vi.; while of those incidents of the tale which the 5th Act embodies little more than an abstract is given.

In fact, the parts of the play attributable to Wilkins's own hand are much the most fully represented in his 'Painfull Adventures.' As it goes on, the novel seems to become more and more an adaptation of Twine's 'Pattern of Painfull Adventures.' Wilkins in writing his novel plainly made use throughout of Twine's story, the very title of which he copied.

The novel serves, however, to show mistakes which arose in the text through wrong hearing; e.g., III. ii., 84, 'I heard,' Novel 48.6, 'I haue read;' and also to explain the action in many places.

§ 3. Some of the peculiarities of Wilkins's work to be noticed in the 1st two Acts of the play and in Gower's choruses may be here set down. In the main I draw from Dr. Boyle's work.¹

(i.) Wilkins frequently repeats pet phrases and ideas:

(a) II. chor: 15, 16—

Tidinges to the contrarie,
Are brought your eyes, what need speake I.

Again 39, 40; and III. chor: 53, 54.

(b) III. chor: 12, 13—

Time that is so briefly spent,
With your fine fancies quaintly each, compared with IV. chor: 45-50; IV. iv. (a second chorus) 1, 2; 17, 18; V. ii. (a second chorus) 14-16; 19, 20.

(c) 'A prettie morall,' II. i., 39; repeated II. ii., 45.

(d) I. ii., 110, 'day serues not light'; cp. II. v., 17.

His awkwardness of phrasing, already illustrated (p. iii.), is visible in II. chor: 17-22² (where 'Not to eate Hony . . . And to fulfill his prince desire' is a clumsily-written parenthesis).

(ii.) Some of Wilkins's favourite words:

¹ See his paper in Transactions of New Sh. Soc. 1880-5, part II., pp. 323-340.

² There seems no need to assume any corruption of the text in these lines, though l. 22 is evidently corrupt.

I. i., 17, 'embracements'; cp. his Novel,¹ thrice, viz., 14.18; 15.24; 18.26.

II. ii., 17, 'prefer' = exhibit, cp. Novel 25.45, 'taking vp an other instrument vnto his eares she preferred thfs.'

II. iii., 83, 'education . . . in artes and armes.' Novel 15.20, 'there was in those days no prince so noble in armes, or excellent in Artes, . . . as Pericles Prince of Tyre.'

I i., 10, 11, and 79, 'perfections.' Novel p. 16, 'whether it was that her owne affection taught her to be in love with his perfections.'

I. i., 77; iv. 28; II. iii., 50, 'stor'd' = filled.

(iii.) Wilkins is very fond, in order to smoothe his verses, of dropping out the relative pronoun: thus II. chor: 36-32—

Thunder aboue, and deepes below,
Makes such vnquiet, that the Shippe,
[which] Should house him safe; is wrackt and split.

cp. I. i., 14, 97, 135; ii., 18, 39, 74; iv., 92, 93; II. chor: 7-8, iv., 11, v., 54.

There are a dozen examples of this construction in Miseries of Inforst Marriage; and in Travailes of the thre English Brothers, in parts which on various grounds are ascribed to Wilkins, there are nine examples. Besides the passages quoted by Dr. Boyle, (p. 331), cp. Miseries, p. 476—²

Unto all bear habit like yourselves.

p. 495—

Brothers to him ere long shall be my son.

p. 496—

I guess, to see this girl shall be your sister.

p. 505—

The murder of a creature equall'd heaven

² The page numbers are those of Hazlitt's Dodsley, vol. IX.

p. 549—

'Twas fitter for yourself . . .

To keep the sister, had undone the brother.

p. 564—

I scorn

To wear his livery is so worthy born.

Proue like those resist to their own ill.

p. 23—

Sway'd by him

Made Men like Angels.

p. 45—

They are best in healthe can set them to the weather.

p. 78—

'Tis some comfort to my miserie

That sunne shines on my Father lookes on mee.

p. 81—

Accept him as our thoughts did hold

A Iem could not be bought from vs with gold.

p. 83 —

Thou speak'st for the honour of that name

Made earth to hange betwixt yon heauenly frame.

p. 87—

To haue beene a villaine to that gentleman

Deserues so well of all men.

(iv.) Though fond of rymed couplets, Wilkins's ear was an imperfect one. Thus Gower's opening lines are—

To sing a Song that old was sung,

From ashes, auntient Gower is come,

a false ryme which is exactly paralleld in Travailes, p. 83 (in the middle of a rymed passage, for it follows two couplets and is followd by three more),—

[That] can infuse into thee, wert thou dumbe,

Words thunderlike, a contradictlesse tongue.

¹ I quote from Bullen's reprint in his edition of Day's plays. The scene-division is given in Dr. Boyle's paper, p. 326.

Somewhat similarly we find 'soone' ryming with 'doome,' V. ii., 19, 20, 'run' r. w. 'dum,' V. ii., 1. 2, 'moones' r. w. 'doomes,' III. chor : 31, 32, 'home' r. w. 'drone,' II. chor : 17, 18. Compare Travailes, p. 86, all the benefit to Christendom

And to your honor is by him vndon—

and p. 23, 'him' r. w. 'sin.'

(v.) Wilkins is fond of putting the negative before the verb, and (vi.) of omitting the particle 'to' before the infinitive mood.

The use of the Chorus, and of the illustrative Dumb Show, which the chorus-speaker introduces and interprets,—a seeming sign of feeble dramatic faculty,—was retained, or revived from old plays,¹ throughout the Travailes.

Further, we may adduce the scene II. v.,—so much ridiculed by Steevens,—of Simonides' dissembling with Pericles and Thaisa. As given in the quartos the scene is very likely imperfect : the Novel gives it at a good deal greater length : but the curious likeness cannot but be noticed between the behaviour of the characters here and that of the similar characters of the Sophy, Robert Shirley and the Sophy's Daughter in Travailes, sc. x.

§ 4. The scenes ii., v., vi. of Act IV. present several curious variations from the corresponding portion of Wilkins's Novel. These in all probability were from the hand of a third author, whom, with Mr. Fleay, I believe to be W. Rowley, Wilkins's coadjutor in The Travailes.

It is remarkable that—as first noticed by Mr. Bullen—the passage II. i., 12-51 is closely paralleled by a passage in the Law Tricks of John Day—the third collaborator in The Travailes—and as in the same passage of Law Tricks there are some small jokes which also occur in Wilkins's Miseries of Enforced Marriage. Dr. Boyle considers we should reckon Wilkins to have been the author of this passage in Law Tricks.¹ (The Travailes was published in 1607, Law Tricks in 1608). His arguments are not, however, very convincing, and I hardly see why we may not suppose these witticisms to have been merely popular 'Joe Millers' of the time.

§ 5. Dr. Boyle kindly wrote to me pointing out some of the subjects which in these Forewords I have tried to set out at length. He says in conclusion—'As to Shakspeare's part of the play I am convinced we have what he meant to be the beginning and the end. There are gaps in the story which might have been filled in afterwards. But seeing that Troilus and Cressida (the incomplete revisal by Sh.), Timon of Athens and Pericles all belong to about the same date (1606-1607), and that all are more or less incomplete, also that the succeeding plays breathe quite another atmosphere, is it not natural to suppose that Shakspeare's final break with the stage, and with his whole London life, took place about 1607? It was the agony of his great life-crisis which prevented him from giving himself up to his art with that repose with which he could look back on the struggle from the peaceful retirement of Stratford. Pericles I look upon as the key to all the later dramas.'

It is, indeed, almost entirely with the later dramas that Pericles presents points of similarity. Marina foreshadows Perdita; the loss and recovery of a wife is again the theme in the Winter's Tale; Cerimon is a shadow of Prospero. We may compare III. i., 43-46, and Marina's description of (the nurse's tale of) the storm at her birth (IV. i., 53-65) with Tempest I.; although perhaps the comparison of the 'fringes of bright gold' in III. ii., 101, with 'the fringed curtains' of Tempest I. ii., 408, is but trifling. Compare, too, Pericles V. i., 213-4—

my mother, who did end the minute I began

with Winter's Tale, V. iii., 45—

Dear queen, that ended when I but began :
and Pericles V. iii., 44-84, with Wint: T: V. iii., 120-155. Pericles is, as it were, a storehouse whence are taken the suggestions for many incidents in the later plays. Mr. Tyler points out to me that the passage III. ii., 31-38, is an instance of the Baconian tendency which is exemplified in Shakspeare's latest plays; e.g., Wint: T: IV. iv., 89-97.

§ 6. There has been some question whether the present was not the earliest edition. The British Museum Library Catalogue calls it "ED. PR." and says that in our No. 21 many errors of this edition have been corrected. But the Cambridge editors think the contrary, and rightly. We find that No. 21 alone gives the right reading in a number of places:—I. ii., 11, 'the passions,' all the rest 'that passions'; 55 'plants,' the rest 'planets'; iv. 98, 'rise,' the rest 'arise'; II. i., 130, 'to' omitted in the other Qtos.; iii. 7, 'mirth becomes,' in this Qto. misprinted 'm irthecomes,' the others emending the text "mirth comes at"; iv., 15, 'shaft, But,' the others 'shaft. By'; III., chor: 44, 'their,' the rest 'then'; i., 5, 'gently,' the rest 'dayly'; 60, 'giue,' the others 'bring'; ii., 107, 'neighbours,' the rest 'neighbour'; iii., 19, 'still'—'dayly'; IV. i., 22, 'keep'—'weepe'; V. iii., 33, 'spake'—'speak.' In III. ii., 93-4, Qto. 1, though wrong, is nearer right than all the rest in reading 'warmth breath[e],' which Qto. 2 mistakenly emended to 'warne breath.' In II. v., 91, 'Amb.' of Qto. 2 and later copies is more likely to be an abbreviation of Qto. 1 'Ambo.' than that an expansion of 'Amb.' In at least three other places the text of No. 22 seems to be due to a misunderstanding of No. 21, viz., III. chor: 35, Q1 'Iranyshed,' Q2 'Irany shed'; V. i., 47, Q1, 'defend,' Q2 'defended'; 112, Q1, 'caste' (i.e., 'cas'd'), Q2 'cast.'

From all these varieties the natural conclusion is that No. 22 is a careless reprint of No. 21; not that No. 21 was—what in Elizabethan texts is not at all usual—a revised edition of No.

22. Indeed, it is hardly to be thought that a reviser careful enough to make these small corrections would not have done his work more thoroughly. We can only regret that no one did ; either in this or in many other cases. But on the hypothesis of the Cambridge Editors the matter is quite plain. It is the almost universal rule to find a later text inferior as regards accuracy to an earlier, and we can hardly do otherwise than agree with them in giving the priority to No. 21.

Several of the places where the texts appear to be wrong are marked in the margin with a ‡.

(i.) The printer of No. 22 did indeed correct several misprints of No. 21, and tried but failed to do so in several other cases. On the other hand (ii.) he in several places misprinted No. 21.

(i.) I. i. end 'Exit' added, which Q1 omits; ii., 61, 'for't' Q1 'fort'; 76, 'rest (harke in thine eare)'—'rest harke in thine eare'; iii. end 'Exeunt'—'Exit'; iv., 13, 'to'—'doe'; 58, 'bring'st'—'bringst'; II. ii., 29, 'Chialry'—'Chinally'; III. i., 66, 'paper'—'Taper'; IV. chor: 17, 'ripe'—'right'; 48, 'on'—'one'; iii., 50, 'Flies'—'Flies'; iv., 10, 'the'—'thy'; V. i., 33, 'sight, hee will'—'sight see, will.'—

(ii.) Besides the examples given, p. x., see I. i., 41, 'hee' for 'thee,' II. chor: 14, 'Statute' for 'Statue,' i., 139, 'shipwarke'—'shipwracke,' v., 2, 'Kinghts,' III. chor: 29, 'hatest'—'hastes,' 47, 'grislee'—'grised,' i., 1, 'his'—'this,' 71, 'heae'—'haue,' ii., 80, 'they'—'that,' 110, 'he'—'her,' IV. i., 35, 'stall'—'shall,' iv., 39, 'That is'—'Thetis,' 49, 'daughter'—'daughters,' V. i., 202, 'that' omitted, ii., 7, 'what'—'and,' iii., 35, 'Thasia'—'Thaisa.'

§ 7. In conclusion, I may justify my belief as to the mangled version of the Play which these Quartos give us by quoting the judgment of the Cambridge Editors: "There can be no doubt," they say, "that the hand of Shakespeare is traceable in many of the scenes . . . But the text has come down to us in so maimed and imperfect a state, that we can no more judge of what the play was when it left the master's hand than we should have been able to judge of Romeo and Juliet if we had only had the first Quarto as authority for the text."

The Play of Pericles

Prince of Tyre, &c.

Eneer Gower.

O sing a Song that old was sung,
From ashes, auncient Gower is come,
Assuming mans infirmities,
To glad your eare, and please your eyes:
It hath been sung at Feastivals,
On Ember Eues, and Holy dayes :

And Lords and Ladies in their liues,
Haue read it for restoratiues
The purchase is to make men glorious,
Et bonum quo Antiquius eo melius:
If you, borne in these latter times,
When Wits more ripe, accept my Rimes;
And that to heare an olde man sing,
May to your wishes pleasure bring :
I life would wish, and that I might Waste it for you like Taper-light.
This Antioch, then, Antiochus the great,
Built vp this Citie, for his chiefeft Seat;
The fairest in all Syria.

I tell you what my Authors say :
This King vnto him tooke a Peere,
Who dyed, and left a Female-heyre,
So buck-some, blith, and full of face.
As heauen had lent her all his grace :
With whom the Father liking tooke,
And her to Incest did prouoke :
Bad child, worse father to intice his owne.

The Play of

To euill, should be done by none :
 But custome What they did begin,
 Was with long vse, account'd no sinne;
 The beautie of this sinfull Dame,
 Made many Princes thither frame,
 To seeke her as o Bed-fellow,
 In maryage pleasures, play-fellow :
 Which to preuent he made a Law,
 To keepe her still, and men in awe :
 That who so ask't her for his wife,
 His Riddle tolde not, lost his life :
 So for her many of wight did die,
 As yon grim lookes doe testifie.
 What now ensues to the iudgement of your eye,
 I giue my cause, who best can iustifie.

Exit.

Enter Antiochus, Prince Pericles, and followers.

Ant. Yong Prince of Tyre, you haue at large receiued
 The danger of the taske you vnder-take.

Per. I haue (Antiochus) and with a soule emboldned
 With the glory of her praise, thinke death no hazard,
 In this interprise.

Ant. Musicke, bring in our Daughter, clothed like a bride,
 For embracements euen of Ioue himselfe;
 At whose conception, till Lucina raigned,
 Nature this dowry gaue; to glad her presence,
 The Senate house of Planets all did sit,
 To knit in her, their best perfections.

Enter Antiochus daughter,

Per. See where she comes, appareled like the Spring,
 Graces her subiects, and her thoughts the King,
 Of every Vertue giues renowne to men :
 Her face the booke of prayses, where is read,
 Nothing but curious pleasures, as from thence,
 Sorrow were euer racte, and teastie wrath
 Could neuer be her milde companion.

PERICLES PRINCE OF TYRE.

I.i.

You Gods that made me man, and sway in loue,
That haue enflam'd desire in my breast,
To taste the fruite of yon celestiall tree,
(Or die in th'adventure) be my helpes,
As I am sonne and seruant to your will,
To compasse such a bondlesse happinesse.

Anti. Prince Pericles.

Peri. That would be sonne to great Antischus.

Ant. Before thee stands this faire Hesperides,
With golden fruit, but dangerous to be toucht :
For death like Dragons heere affright thee hard :
Here face like Heauen, inticeth thee to view
Her countlesse glory, which desert must gaine :
And which without desert, because thine eye
Presumes to reach, all the whole heape must die :
Yon sometimes famous Princes, like thy selfe,
Drawne by report, aduenturous by desire,
Tell thee with speechlesse tongues, and semblance pale,
That without couering, saue yon field of Starres,
Heere they stand Martyrs slaine in Cyprius Warres :
And with dead cheekes aduise thee to desist,
For going on deaths net, whom none resist.

Per. Antiochus, I thanke hee, who hath taught,
My fraile mortalitie to know it selfe;
And by those fearefull obiects to prepare
This body, like to them, to what I must :
For death remembred should be like a Myrrour,
Who tels vs, life's but breath, to trust it errour :
He make my Will then, and as sicke men doe,
Who know the World, see Heauen, but feeling woe.
Gripe not at earthly ioyes as earst they did;
So I bequeath a happy peace to you,
And all good men, as euery Prince should doe;
My riches to the earth, from whence they came;
But my vnspotted fire of Loue, to you :
Thus ready for the way of life or death,
I waite the sharpest blow (Antiochus)

Scorning

The Play of

Scorning aduice; read the conclusion then :
Which read and not expounded, tis decreed,
As these before thee, thou thy selfe shalt bleed

Daugh. Of all sayd yet, mayst thou prooue prosperous :
Of all sayd yet, I wish thee happinesse.

Peri. Like a bold Champion I assume the Listes,
Nor aske aduise of any other thought,
But faythfulnesse and courage.

The Riddle.

*I am no Viper, yet I feed
On mothers flesh which did me breed :
I fought a husband, in which labour,
I found that kinde: he in a father;
Hee's Father, Sonne and Husband milde;
I, Mother, Wife, and yet his child :
How they may be, and yet in two,
As you will line resolve it you*

Sharpe Phisicke is the last : but ô you powers !
That giues heauen countlesse eyes to view mens actes.
Why cloude they not their sights perpetually,
If this be true, which makes me pale to read it ?
Faire Glasse of light, I lou'd you and could still,
Were not this glorious Casket stor'd with ill :
But I must tell you, now my thoughts reuolt,
For hee's no man on whom perfections waite,
That knowing sinne within, will touch the gate;
You are a faire Violl, and your sence, the stringes,
Who finger'd to make man his lawfull musicke,
Would draw Heauen downe, and all the Gods to hearken:
But being playd vpon before your time,
Hell onely daunceth at so harsh a chime :
Good sooth, I care not for you.

Ant. Prince Pericles, touch not, vpon thy life;
For that's an Article within our Law,
As dangerous as the rest : your time's expir'd,
Eiher expound now, or receiue your sentence.

- Peric.

Pericles Prince of Tyre.I.i.Peri. Great King,

Few loue to heare the finnes they loue to act,
 T'would brayde your selfe too neare for me to tell it:
 Who has a Booke of all that Monarches doe,
 Hee's more secure to keepe it shut, then showne:
 For Vice repeated, is like the wandring Wind,
 Blowes dust in others eyes to spread it selfe;
 And yet the end of all is bought thus deare,
 The breath is gone, and the fore eyes see cleare:
 To stoppe the Ayre would hurt them, the blind Mole castes.
 Copt hilles towards heauen, to tell the earth is throng'd
 By mans oppression, and the poore Worme doth die for't:
 Kinges are earths Gods; in vice, their law's their will:
 And if Ione stray, who dare say, Ione doth ill.
 It is enough you know, and it is fit;

What being more knowne, growes worfe, to smother it.
 Ail loue the wombe that their first beeing bred,
 Then giue my tongue like leaue, to loue my head. (ning:

Ant. Heauen, that I had thy head; he ha's found the mea-
 But I will gloze with him. Young Prince of Tyre,
 Though by the tenour of your strict edict,
 Your exposition misinterpreting,
 We might proceed to counsell of your dayes;
 Yet hope, succeeding from so faire a tree
 As your faire selfe, doth tune vs orherwise;
 Fourtie dayes longer we doe respite you,
 If by which time, our secret be vndone,
 This mercie shewes, wee'le ioy in such a Sonne:
 And vntill then, your entertaine shall bee
 As doth besit our honour, and your worth.

Manet Pericles solus.

Peri. How courtesie would seeme to couer sinne,
 When what is done, is like an hipocrite,
 The which is good in nothing but in sight.
 If it be true that I interpret false,
 Then were it certaine you were not so bad,
 As with foule Incest to abuse your soule:

Where

The Play ofI.i

Where now you both a Father and a sonne,
 By your vntimely clasplings with your child,
 (Which pleasures fits an husband not a father)
 And she an eater of her mothers flesh,
 By the defiling of her parents bed,
 And both like Serpents are, who though they feed
 On sweetest Flowers, yet they poison breed.

Antioch farewell, for wisdom sees those men
 Blush not in actions blacker then the night,
 Will shew no course to keepe them from the light:
 One sinne (I know) another doth prouoke;
 Murder's as neere to lust, as flame to smoke:
 Poyson and treason are the hands of sinne,
 I, and the Targets to put off the shame,
 Then least my life be cropt to keepe you cleare,
 By flight, Ile shun the danger which I feare.

140

Exit.

142

Enter Antiochus.

Anti. Hee hath found the meaning,
 For which we meane to haue his head.
 He must not liue to trumpet forth my infamie,
 Nor tell the World Antiochus doth sinne
 In such a loathed manner:
 And therefore instantly this Prince must die,
 For by his fall, my honour must keepe hic.
 Who attends vs there?

149

Enter Thaliard.Thal. Doth your Highnesse call?

Anti. Thaliard, you are of our Chamber, Thaliard,
 And our minde pertakes her priuate actions
 To your secrecie; and for your faithfulnessse
 We will aduance you, Thaliard:
 Behold, heer's poison, and heer's gold:
 We hate the Prince of Tyre, and thou must kill him;
 It fits thee not to aske the reason why?
 Because we bid it: say, is it done?

Thal. My Lord, tis done.Enter

*Pericles Prince of Tyre.*I.i.Enter a Messenger.

Ant. Enough. Let your breath coole your selfe, telling your haste. 160

Mess. My Lord, Prince Pericles is fled.

Ant. As thou wilt liue flie after, and like an arrow shot from a well experient Archer hits the marke his eye doth leuell at : so thou neuer returne vntill thou say Prince Pe- 164
ricles is dead.

Thal. My Lord, if I can get him within my Pistols length, Ile make him sure enough, so farewell to your highnesse. 169

Thalward adieu, till Pericles be dead,
My heart can lend no succour to my head. Exit. 171

*Enter Pericles with his Lords.*I.ii.

Pe. Let none disturb vs; why should this chage of thoughts
The sad companion dull eyde melancholy,
By me so vs'de a guest as not an houre,
In the daves glorious walke or peacefull night,
The tombe where grieve should sleepe can breed me quiet,
Here pleasures court mine eies, and mine eies shun them,
And daunger which I feard is at Antioch,
Whose arme seemies farre too short to hit me here,
Yet neither pleasures Art can ioy my spirits,
Nor yet the others distance comfort me:
Then it is thus, that passions of the minde,
That haue their first conception by misdread,
Haue after nourishment and life by care;
And what was first but feare, what might be done,
Growes elder now, and cares it be not done.
And so with me, the great Antiochus,
Gainst whom I am too little to contend,
Since hee's so great, can make his will his act,
Will thinke me speaking, though I sweare to silence,
Nor bootes it me to say I honour,
If he suspect I may dishonour him. 20

B

And

The Play ofLii.

And what may make him blush in being knowne,
 Heele stop the course by which it might be knowne,
 With hostile forces heele ore-spread the land,
 And with the stint of warre will looke so huge,
 Amazement shall drine courage from the state :
 Our men be vanquish't, ere they doe resist,
 And subiects punish't that nere thought offence,
 Which care of them, not pittie of my selfe,
 Who once no more but as the tops of trees,
 Which fence the rootes they grow by and defend them,
 Makes both my body pine, and soule to languish,
 And punish that before that he would punish,

Enter all the Lords to Pericles.

1. Lord. Ioy and all comfort in your sacred breast.

2. Lord. And keepe your minde till you returne to vs peacefull and comfortable.

Hel. Peace, peace, and giue experience tongue :
 They doe abuse the King that flatter him,
 For flatterie is the bellows blowes vp sinne,
 The thing the which is flattered, but a sparke,
 To which that sparke giues heart, and stronger
 Glowing, whereas reproofe obedient and in order,
 Fits kings as they are men, for they may erre,
 When signiour sooth here does proclaime peace,
 Hee flatters you, makes warre vpon your life.
 Prince pardon me, or strike me if you please,
 I can not be much lower then my knees.

Per. All leaue vs else : but let your cares ore-lookke
 What shipping, and what ladings in our Hauen,
 And then returne to vs, Helicanus thou hast
 Moou'd vs : what seest thou in our lookes?

Hel. An angrie brow, dread Lord.

Per. If there be such a dart in Princes frownes,
 How durst thy tongue moue anger to our face ?

Hel. How dares the planets looke vp to heauen,

From

Percies Prince of Tyre.

I.ii.

From whence they haue their nourishment?

Per. Thou knowest I haue power to take thy life from Hell. I haue ground the Axe my selfe, (thee.

Doe but you strike the blowe.

Per. Rise, prethee rise, sit downe, thou art no flatterer,
I thanke thee for't, and heauen forbid,

That Kings should let their eares heare their faults hid.

Fit Counsellor, and seruant for a Prince,

Who by thy wisdom makes a Prince thy seruant,

What wouldst thou haue me doe?

Hell. To beare with patience such griefes, as you your selfe doe lay vpon your selfe.

Per. Thou speakest like a Physitian Hellianus,

That ministers a portion vnto me,

That thou wouldst tremble to receiue thy selfe.

Attend me then, I went to Antioch,

Where as thou know'st (against the face of death)

I sought the purchase of a glorious beutie,

From whence an issue I might propigate

Are armes to Princes, and bring ioyes to subiects:

Her face was to mine eye beyond all wonder,

The rest (harke in thine eare) as blacke as incest,

Which by my knowledge found, the sinfull father

Seem'de not to strike, but smoothe: but thou knowst this,

Tis time to feare, when Tyrants seeme to kisse.

Which feare so grew in me I hither fled,

Vnder the couering of a carefull night,

Who seem'd my good Protector: and being here,

Bethought what was past, what might succeed;

I knew him tyrannous, and Tyrants feare

Decrease not, but grow faster then the yeares:

And should he doo't as no doubt he doth,

That I should open to the lifting ayre,

How many worthy Princes bloods were shed,

To keepe his bed of blacknesse vnlayd ope,

B 2

To

*The Play of*I.ii

To lop that doubt, hee'll fill this Land with armes,
 And make pretence of wrong that I haue done him,
 When all for mine, if I may call offence,
 Must feele warres blow, who feares not innocence:
 Which loue to all of which thy selfe art one,
 Who now reproc'dst me fort.

Hell. Alas sir.

Per. Drew sleepe out of mine eies, blood frō my cheeks
 Musings into my minde, with thousand doubts
 How I might stop this tempest ere it came,
 And finding little comfort to relieue them,
 I thought it princely charitie to grieue for them.

Hell. Well my Lord, since you haue giuen mee leaue to Freely will I speake,, Aamachus you feare (speake,
 And iustly too, I thinke you feare the Tyrant,
 Who either by publike warre, or priuate treason, will take away your life : therefore my Lord, goe travell for a while, till that his rage and anger be forgot, or till the Destinies doe cut his threed of life : your Rule direct to any, if to me, day serues not light more faithfull then Ile be.

Per. I doe not doubt thy faith.

But should he wrong my liberties in my absence ?

Hell. Weele mingle our bloods together in the earth,
 From whence we had our being, and our birth.

Per. Tyre, I now looke from thee then, and to Tharsus
 Intend my trauaile, where Ile heare from thee,
 And by whose letters Ile dispose my selfe.
 The care I had, and haue of Subiects good,
 On thee I lay, whose wisdomes strength can beare it,
 Ile rake thy word for faith, not aske thine oath,
 Who shuns not to breake one, will cracke both.
 But in our orbs we liue so round, and safe,
 That time of both this trueth shall neere conuince,
 Thou shewest a subiects shine, I a true Prince.

Exit.

Enter

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

Enter Thaliard solus,

I. iii.

So, this is Tyre, and this the Court, heere must I kill king Pericles, and if I doe it not, I am sure to be hang'd at home: t'^tis dangerous.

Well, I perceiue he was a wise fellow, and had good discretion, that beeing bid to aske what he would of the King, desired he might know none of his secrets.

Now doe I see he had some reason for't, for if a King bid a man be a Villaine, hee's bound by the indenture of his oath to be one.

Huiht, here comes the Lords of Tyre.

Enter Hellicanus, Escanes, with other Lords.

Hell. You shall not neede my fellow-Peers of Tyre, further to question mee of your Kings departure: his sealed Commission left in trust with mee, does speake sufficiently hee's gone to trauaile.

Thaliard. How? the King gone?

Hell. If further yet you will be satisfied, (why as it were vnlicenced of your loues) he would depart? He giue some light vnto you, beeing at Antioch.

Tha. What from Antioch?

Hell. Royall Antiochus on what cause I knowe not, tooke some displeasure at him, at least hee iudg'd so: and doubting least he had err'd or sinn'de, to shew his sorrowe, hee'de correct himselfe; so puts himselfe vnto the Shipmans toyle, with whom eache minute threatens life or death.

Thaliard. Well, I perceiue I shall not bee hang'd now, although I would, but since hee's gone, the Kings Seas must please: hee scap't the Land to perish at the Sea: He present my selfe. Peace to the Lords of Tyre.

B 3.

Lord

The Play of

Lord Thaliard from Antiochus is welcome.

Thal. From him I come with message vnto Princely Pericles, but since my landing I haue vnderstood, your Lord has betooke himselfe to vnknowne trauailes, now message must returne from whence it came.

Hell. We haue no reason to desire it, commended to our Maister not to vs, yet ere you shall depart, this we desire as friends to Antioch, we may feast in Tyre. Exeunt.

Enter Cleon the Gouvernour of Tharsus, with his wife and others.

Cleon. My Dioniza shall we rest vs heere,
And by relating tales of others griefes,
See if it will teach vs to forget our owne?

Dion. That were to blow at fire in hope to quench it,
For who digs hilles because they doe aspire?
Throwes downe one mountaine to cast vp a higher:
O my distressed Lord, euen such our griefes are,
Here they are but felt, and scene with mischiefes eyes,
But like to Groues being topt, they higher rise.

Cleon. O Dioniza,
Who wanteth food, and will not say he wants it,
Or can conceale his hunger till hee famish?
Our tongues and sorrowes doe sound deepe:
Our woes into the aire, our eyes to weepe.
Till tongues fetch breath that may proclaime
Them louder, that if heauen slumber, while
Their creatures want, they may awake
Their helpers, to comfort them.
He then discourse our woes felt seuerall yeares,
And wanting breath to speake, helpe mee with teares.

Dion. He doemy best Sir.

Cleon. This Tharsus, or'e which I haue the Gouvernement,
A Citie on whom plentie held full hand:
For riches strew'de her selfe euen in her streets,

Pericles Prince of Tyre.I.iv.

Whose towers bore-heads so high they kist the clowdes,
 And strangers nere beheld, but woundred at,
 Whose men and dames so jettred and adorn'de,
 Like one anothers glasse to trimme them by :
 Their tables were stor'de full to glad the sight,
 And not so much to feede on as delight,
 All pouertie was scorn'd, and pride so great,
 The name of helpe grew odious to repeate.

Dion. O t's too true.

Cleon. But see what heauen can doe by this our change :
 These mouthes who but of late, earth, sea, and ayre,
 Were all too little to content and please,
 Although they gaue their creatures in abundance :
 As houses are desil'de for want of vse,
 They are now staru'de for want of exercise:
 Those pallats who not yet too sauers yonger,
 Must haue inuentions to delight the taste,
 Would now be glad of bread and beg for it:
 Those mothers who to nouzell vp their Babes,
 Thought nought too curious, are readie now
 To eate those little darlings whom they lou'de,
 So sharpe are hungers teeth, that man and wife,
 Draw lots who first shall die to lengthen life.
 Heere stands a Lord, and there a Ladie weeping :
 Heere many sinke, yet those which see them fall,
 Is not this true ?

Dion. Our cheekes and hollow eyes doe witnesse it.

Cleon. O let those Cities that of plenties cup,
 And her prosperities so largely taste,
 With their superfluous ryots heare these teares,
 The miserie of Tharsus may be theirs.

Enter a Lord.

Lord. Where's the Lord Gouvernour ?

Cleon. Here, speake out thy sorrowes, which thee bring'st in

in haste, for comfort is too farre for vs to expect.

Lord. Wee haue descried vpon our neighbouring shore, a portly saile of ships make hitherward.

Cleon. I thought as much.

One sorrow neuer comes but brings an heire,
That may succeed as his inheritor :

And so in ours; some neighbouring nation,
Taking aduantage of our miserie,
That stuff't the hollow vessells with their power,
To beat vs downe the which are downe already,
And make a conquest of vnhappy me,
Whereas no glories got to ouercome.

Lord. That's the least feare.

For by the semblance of their white flagges displayde, they bring vs peace, and come to vs as fauourers, not as foes.

Cleon. Thou speak'st like hymnes vntuter'd to repeat,
Who makes the fairest shew, meanes most decept.

But bring they what they will, and what they can,
What need we leaue our grounds the lowest ?

And wee are halfe way there : Goe, tell their Generall wee attend him here, to know for what he comes, and whence he comes, and what he craues ?

Lord. I goe my Lord.

Cleon. Welcome is peace, if he on peace consist;
If warres, we are vnable to resist.

Enter Pericles with attendants.

Per. Lord Gouvernour for so we heare you are,
Let not our ships and number of our men,
Belike a Beacon fier'd, r' amaze your eyes,
Wee haue heard your miseries as farre as Tyre,
And seene the desolation of your streets,
Nor come we to adde sorrow to your teares,
But to releiue them of their heauie load,
And these our shippes you happily may thinke,

Are

*Pericles Prince of Tyre.*Liv.

Omnes. The Gods of Greece protect you,
 And weel'e pray for you.

Per. Arise I pray you, arise; we do not looke for reuerence but for loue, and harborage for our selfe, our ships, and men.

Chor. The which when any shall not gratifie,
 Or pay you with vnthankefulnesse in thought,
 Be it our wiues, our children or our selues,

 Your Grace is welcome to our Towne and vs.

 His child I wis to incest bring :
 A better Prince and benigne Lord,
 That will prooue awfull both in deed and word.
 Be quiet then, as men should be,
 Till he hath past necessitie :
 He shew you those in troubles raignes;
 Loosing a Mite, a Mountaine gaine :
 The good in conuersation,
 To whom I giue my benizon :
 Is still at Thar Still, where each man,
 Thinkes all is write he spoken can :
 And to remember what he does,
 Build his Statute to make him glorious :
 But tidings to the contrary,
 Are brought your eyes, what need speake I.

Enter at one dore Pericles talking with Cleon, all the Traine with them : Enter at another dore, a Gentleman with a Letter to Pericles ; Pericles shewes the Letter to Cleon ; Pericles gives the Messenger a reward, and Knights him.

Exit Pericles at one dore, and Cleon at an other.

Good Hellicon that stayd at home,
Not to eate hony like a Drone,
From others labours; for though he strue
To killen bad, keepe good aliuie :
And to fulfill his Prince desire,
Sau'd one of all that happes in Tyre :
How Taliard came full bent with sinne,
And hid intent to murder him;
And that in Tharfis was not best,
Longer for him to make his rest :
He doing so, put foorth to Seas;
Where when men been, there's seldome ease,
For now the Wind begins to blow,
Thunder aboue, and deepes below,
Makes such vnquiet, that the ship,
Should house him safe; is wrackt and split,
And he (good Prince) hauing all lost,
By Waues, from coast to coast is tost :
All perisshen of man of pelfe,
Ne ought escapen'd but himselfe;
Till fortune tyr'd with doing bad,
Threw him a shore, to giue him glad :
And heere he comes : what shall be next,
Pardon old Gower, this long's the text.

Enter Pericles wette.

Per. Yet cease your ire, you angry Starres of heauen,
Wind, Raine, and Thunder: remember earthly man
Is but a substance that must yeeld to you :
And I (as fits my nature) do obey you.

Alasse, the Seas hath cast me on the Rocks,
 Washt me from shore to shore, and left my breath
 Nothing to thinke on, but ensuing death:
 Let it suffice the greatnes of your powers,
 To haue bereeft a Prince of all his fortunes;
 And hauing throwne him from your watry graue,
 Heere to haue death in peace, is all hee'le craue.

Enter three Fisher-men.

1. What, to pelch?

2. Ha, come and bring away the Nets.

1. What Patch-breech, I say?

3. What say you Maister?

1. Looke how thou stirr'st now:

Come away, or Ile fetch'th with a wanion.

3. Faith Maister, I am thinking of the poore men,
 That were cast away before vs, euen now.1. Alasse poore soules, it greiued my heart to heare
 What pittifull cryes they made to vs, to helpe them,
 When (welladay) we could scarce helpe our selues.3. Nay Maister, sayd not I as much,
 When I saw the Porpas, how he bounst and tumbled?
 They say, they're halfe fish, halfe flesh:A plague on them, they neere come but I looke to be washt.
 Maister, I maruell how the fishes liue in the Sea?1. Why as men doe a land;
 The great ones eat vp the little ones:
 I can compare our rich Misers, to nothing so fitly,
 As to a Whale; a playes and tumbles
 Drining the poore Fry before him,
 And at last, deuoure them all at a mouthfull:
 Such Whales haue I heard on a'th land,
 Who neuer leaue gaping, till they swallow'd
 The whole Parish, Church, Steeple, Belles and all.Per. A prettie Morall.3. But Maister, if I had been the Sexton,
 I would haue beene that day in the Belfrie.

2. Why, Man?

C 2.

1. Because

The Play ofIl.i.

1. Because he should haue swallowed me too,
 And when I had been in his bellie,
 I would haue kept such a gangling of the Belles,
 That he should neuer haue left,
 Till he cast Bells, Steeple, Church and Parish vp againe :
 But if the good King Simonides were of my minde.

Per. Simonides?

3. We would purge the land of these Drones,
 That robbe the Bee of her hony.

Per. How from the fenny subiect of the Sea,
 These Fishers tell the infirmities of men,
 And from their watry Empire recollect,
 All that may men approoue or men detest.
 Peace be at your labour honest fishermen.

2. Honest, good fellow what's that, if it be a day fits you
 Search out of the Kalender, and no body looke after it?

Per. May see the Sea hath cast vpon your coast :

2. What a drunken Knaue was the Sea,
 To cast thee in our way?

Per. A man whom both the Waters and the Winde,
 In that vaste Tennis-court, hath made the Ball
 For them to play vpon, intreats you pittie him :
 He askes of you that neuer vs'd to begge.

1. No friend, cannot you begge?
 Heer's them in our countrey of Greece,
 Gets more with begging, then we can doe with working.

2. Canst thou catch any Fishes then?

Per. I neuer practiz'de it.

2. Nay then thou wilt starue sure : for heer's nothing to be got now-adayes, vnlesse thou canst fish for't.

Per. What I haue beene I haue forgot to know;
 But what I am, want teaches me to thinke on :
 A man throng'd vp with colde, my veines are chill,
 And haue no more of life then may suffice,
 To giue my tongue that heat to aske your helpe :
 Which if you shall refuse, when I am dead,
 For that I am a man, pray you see me buried.

1. Die

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

1. Die, ke-tha; now Gods forbi d't, and I haue a Gowne heere, come put it on, keepe thee warme : now afore mee a handsome fellow : Come, thou shalt goe home, and weel'e haue Flesh for all day, Fish for fasting-dayes and more; or Puddings and Flap-iacks, and thou shalt be welcome.

Per. I thanke you sir.

2. Harke you my friend : You said you could not beg?

Per. I did but craue.

2 But craue?

Then Ile turne crauer too, and so I shall scape whipping.

Per. Why, are you Beggers whip't then?

2. Oh not all, my friend, not all : for if all your Beggers were whipt, I would wish no better office, then to be Beadle: But Maister, Ile goe draw vp the Net.

Per. How well this honest mirth becomes their labour?

1. Harke you sir; doe you know where ye are?

Per. Not well.

1. Why I tell you, this is cal'd Pantapoles, And our King, the good Symonides.

Per. The good Symonides, doe you call him?

1. I sir; and he deserues so to be cal'd, For his peaceable raigne, and good gouernement.

Per. He is a happie King, since he gaines from His subiects the name of good, by his gouernment. How farre is his court distant from this shore?

1. Mary sir, halfe a dayes iourney : And Ile tell you, He hath a faire Daughter, and to morrow is her birth-day, And there are Princes and Knights come from all partes of the World, to Iust and Turney for her loue,

Per. Were my fortunes equall to my desires, I could wish to make one there.

1. O sir, things must be as they may: and what a man can not get, he may lawfully deale for his Wiues soule.

Enter the two Fisher-men, drawing up a Net.

2. Helpe Maister helpe; heere's a Fish hangs in the Net, Like a poore mans right in the law : t'will hardly come out. Habots on't, tis come at last ; & tis tur'nd to a rusty Armor.

Per. An Armour friends; I pray you let me see it?
 * Thanks Fortune, yet that after all Crosses,
 * Thou giuest me somewhat to repayre my selfe :
 * And though it was mine owne part of my heritage,
 * Which my dead father did bequeath me,
 * With this strict charge, euen as he left his life:
 * Keepe it, my Pericles. it hath been a sheild
 * Twixt me and death; and pointed to this Brayse,
 * For that it saued me, keepe it in like necessitie :
 * The which the Gods protect thee, Fame may defend thee :
 * It kept where I kept, I so dearly lou'd it,
 * Till the rough Seas (that spares not any man)
 * Took it in rage, though calm'd, hath giuen't againe:
 * I thanke thee for't, my ship-warke now's no ill,
 * Since I haue here my father gaue in his Will.

1. What meane you sir?

Per. To begge of you (kind friends) this Coate of worth,
 For it was sometime Target to a King;
 I know it by this marke: he loued me dearly,
 And for his sake, I with the hauing of it:
 And that you'd guide me to your Soueraignes Court,
 Where with it, I may appeare a Gentleman :
 And if that euer my low fortune's better,
 Ile pay you bounties; till then, rest your debter.

1. Why wilt thou turney for the Lady ?

Per. Ile shew the vertue I haue borne in Armes.

1. Why di'e take it: and the Gods giue thee good an't.
 2. I but harke you (my friend) t'was wee that made vp this Garment through the rough seam's of the waters:
 there are certaine Condolements, certaine Vailes: I hope sir, if you thriue, you'll remember from whence you had them.

Per. Belleeue't, I will:
 By your furtherance I am cloth'd in Steele,
 And spight of all the rupture of the Sea,
 This Jewell holds his building on my arme :
 Vnto thy value I will mount my selfe.

Vpon

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

Vpon a Courser, whose delight steps,
Shall make the Gazar ioy to see him tread;
Onely (my friend) I yet am vnprouided of a paire of Bases.

2. Wee'le sure prouide, thou shalt haue
My best Gowne to make thee a paire;
And Ile bring thee to the Court my selfe.

Per. Then honour be but a Goale to my will,
This day Ile rise, or else adde ill to ill.

Enter Simonydes with attendants, and Thaisa.

King. Are the Knights ready to begin the Tryumph?

1. Lord. They are my Leige, and stay your comming,
To present themselues.

King. Returne them, We are ready, & our daughter heere,
In honour of whose birth, these Tryumphs are,
Sits heere like beauties child, whom Nature gat,
For men to see; and seeing wonder at.

Thai. It pleaseth you (my royall father) to expresse
My commendations great, whose meritt's lesse.

King. It's fit it should be so, for Princes are
A modell which Heauen makes like to it selfe:
As Jewels loose their glory, if neglected,
So Princes their Renownes, if not respected:
T'is now your honour (Daughter) to entertaine
The labour of each Knight, in his deuice.

Thai. Which to preferue my honour Il'e performe.

The first Knight passes by.

King. Who is the first, that doth preferre himselfe?

Thai. A Knight of Sparra (my renowned father)
And the deuice he beares vpon his Shield,
Is a blacke Ethyope reaching at the Sunne:
The word: Lux tua vita mihi.

King. He loues you well, that holdes his life of you.

The second Knight.

Who is the second, that presents himselfe?

Tba. A Prince of Macedon (my royall father)
And the deuice he beares vpon his Shield,
Is an Armed Knight, that's conquered by a Lady :
The Motto thus in Spanish. Pue Per doleera kee per forsa.

3. Knight. King. And with the third?

Tba. The third, of Antioch; and his deuice,
A wreath of Chiuallry : the word : Me Pompey prouexit apex.

4. Knight. King. What is the fourth.

Tba. A burning Torch that's turned vpside downe;
The word : Quime alit me extinguit.

King. Which shewes that beautie hath his power and wil, which can as well inflame, as it can kill.

5. Knight. Tba. The fift: an Hand enuironed with clouds,
Holding out Gold, that's by the Touch-stone tryde :
The Motto thus : Sic spectanda fides.

6. Knight. King. And what's the sixt, and last; the which,
the Knight himself with such a gracefull courtesie deliuered?

Tba. Hee seemes to be a stranger : but his Present is
A withered Branch that's onely greene at top,
The Motto : In hac spe uiuo.

King. A pretty morral; frō the deiected state wherein he is,
He hopes by you, his fortunes yet may flourish.

1. Lord. He had need meane better then his outward shew
Can any way speake in his iust commend :
For by his rusty out-side he appears,
To haue practis'd more the Whipstocke, then the Lance.

2. Lord. He well may be a stranger for he comes
To an honor'd triumph, strangely furnisht.

3. Lord. And on set purpose let his Armour rust
Vntill this day to scowre it in the dust.

King. Opinion's but a foole, that makes vs seane
The outward habit, by the inward man.
But stay the Knights are coming,
We will with-draw into the Gallerie.

Great shoutes, and all cry, the meane Knight.

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

II.iii.

Enter the King and Knights from Tilting.

King. Knights, to say you're welcome, were superfluous.
I place vpon the volume of your deeds,
As in a Title page; your worth in armes,
Were more then you expect, or more then's fit,
Since euery worth in shew commends it selfe:
Prepare for mirth, for mirth comes a Feast.
You are Princes, and my guesles.

Thais. But you my Knight and guest,
To whom this Wreath of victorie I giue,
And crowne you King of this dayes happinesse.

Per. Tis more by Fortune (Lady) then my merit.

King. Call it by what you will, the day is your,
And here (I hope) is none that enuies it:
In framing an Artist, art hath thus decreed,
To make some good, but others to exceed,
And you are her labour'd scholler: come Queene a th'feast,
For (Daughter) so you are; here take your place:
Martiall the rest, as they deserue their grace.

Knights. We are honour'd much by good Symonides.

King. Your presence glads our dayes, honour weel loue,
For who hates honour, hates the Gods above.

Marsh. Sir, yonder is your place.

Per. Some other is more fit.

1. Knight. Contend not fir, for we are Gentlemen,
Hau neither in our hearts, nor outward eyes,
Enuies the great, nor shall the low despise.

Per. You are right courtiuous Knights.

King. Sit fir, sit.

By Joue (I wonder) that is King of thoughts,
These Cares resist me, he not thought vpon.

Thais. By Iuno (that is Queene of Marriage)
All Viands that I eate do seeme vnfaurie,
Wishing him my meat: sure hee's a gallant Gentleman.

King. Hee's but a countrie Gentleman: ha's done no more
Then other Knights haue done; ha's broken a staffe.

*The Play of*II.iii.

Or so; so let it passe.

Thai. To me he seemes like Diamond, to Glasse.

Pe. Yon King's to me, like to my fathers picture,
Which tels in that glory once he was,
Had Princes sit like starres about his Throane,
And he the Sunne for them to reuerence;
None that beheld him, but like lesser lights,
Did vaile their Crownes to his supremacie;
Where now his sonne like a Glo-worme in the night,
The which hath Fire in darkenesse, none in light:
Whereby I see that Time's the King of Men,
Hee's both their Parent, and he is their Graue,
And giues them what he will, not what they craue.

King. What are you merry, Knights?

Knights. Who can be other in this royall presence.

King. Heere with a cup that's stur'd vnto the brim,
As do you loue, fill to your Mistresse lips;
We drinke this health to you.

Knights. We thanke your grace.

King. Yet pause awhile; yon Knight doth sit too melan-
As if the intertainment in our Court, (choly,
Had not a shew might counteruaile his worth:
Note it not you, Thaisa?

Thai. What is't to me my father?

King. O, attend my Daughter,
Princes in this, should liue like Gods aboue,
Who freely giue to euery one that come to honour them:
And Princes not doing so, are like to Gnats,
Which make a sound, but kild, are wondred at:
Therefore to make his entrance more sweet,
Heere, say we drinke this standing boule of wine to him.

Thai. Alas, my father, it befits not me,
Vnto a stranger Knight to be so bold,
He may my proffer take for an offence,
Since men take womens gifts for impudence.

King. How? doe as I bid you, or youle mooue me else.

Thai. Now by the Gods, he could not please me better.

King.

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

King. And furthermore tell him, we desire to know of him
Of whence he is, his name, and Parentage?

Thas. The King my father (fir) has drunke to you.

Per. I thanke him.

Thas. Wishing it so much blood vnto your life.

Per. I thanke both him and you, and pledge him freely.

Thas. And further, he desires to know of you,
Of whence you are, your name, and parentage?

Per. A Gentleman of Tyre, my name Pericles,
My education beene in Arts and Armes.

Who looking for adventures in the world,
Was by the rough seas reft of ships and men,
And after ship-wracke, driuen vpon this shore.

Thas. He thanks your Grace; names himselfe Pericles,
A Gentleman of Tyre; who onely by misfortune of the seas,
Bereft of ships and men, cast on the shore.

king. Now by the Gods, I pittie his misfortune,
And will awake him from his melancholy.

Come Gentlemen, we sit too long on trifles,
And waste the time which lookes for other reuels:
Euen in your Armour as you are addrest,
Will well become a Souldiers daunce:

I will not haue excuse with saying this,
Lowd musike is too harsh for Ladyes heads,
Since they loue men in Armes, as well as beds.

They daunce.

So, this was well ask't, t'was so well perform'd.
Come fir, heer's a Lady that wants breathing too:
And I haue heard, you Knights of Tyre,
Are excellent in making Ladyes trippe;
And that their Measures are as excellent.

Per. In those that practize them, they are (my Lord.)

king. Oh that's as much, as you would be denyed
Of your faire courttesie: vnclaspe, vnclaspe.

Princes, it is too late to talke of Loue,
And that's the marke I know you leuell at :
Therefore each one betake him to his rest,
To morrow all for speeding doe their best.

Enter Hellicanus and Escanes.

Hell. No Escanes know this of mee,
Antiochus from incest liued not free :
For which the most high Gods not minding,
Longer to withhold the vengeance that
They had in store, due to this haynous
Capitall offence; euen in the height and pride
Of all his glory, when he was seated in
A Chariot of an inestimable value, and his daughter
With him; a fire from heauen came and shriueled
Vp those bodyes euen to lothing, for they so stounke,
That all those eyes ador'd them, ere their fall,
Scornenow their hand should giue them buriall.

Escanes. T' was very strange.

Hell. And yet but iustice; for though this King were great,
His greatnesse was no gard to barre heauens shaft.
By sinne had his reward.

Escan. Tis very true.

Enter two or three Lords.

1. Lord. See, not a man in priuate conference,
Or counsaile, ha's respect with him but hee.

2. Lord. It shall no longer grieue without reproofe.

3. Lord. And curst be he that will not second it.

1. Lord. Follow me then : Lord Hellicane, a word.

Hell. With me? and welcome, happy day my Lords.

And now at length they ouer-flow their bankes.

But if the Prince doe liue, let vs salute him,
Or know what ground's made happie by his breath :
If in the world he liue, wee'le seeke him out :
If in his graue he rest, wee'le finde him there,
And be resolued he liues to gouerne vs :
Or dead, giue's cause to mourne his funerall,
And leaue vs to our free Election.

And knowing this Kingdome is without a head,
Like goodly buildings left without a Roofe,

That best know how to rule and how to raigne,
We thus submit vnto our Soueraigne.

Omnes. Liue noble Hellican.

Hell. Try honours cause; forbear your suffrages :
If that you loue Prince Pericles, forbear,

A twelue-month longer, let me intreat you
To forbear the absence of your King;
If in which time expir'd he not returne,
I shall with aged patience beare your yoke.
But if I cannot winne you to this loue,
Goe search like Nobles, like noble Subiects,
And in your search, spend your aduenturous worth,
Whom if you finde, and winne vnto returne,
You shall like Diamonds sit about his Crowne.

And since Lord Hellican iniourneth vs,
We with our trauels will endeaour.

Hell. Then you loue vs, we you, & wee'le claspe hands:
When Peeres thus knit, a Kingdome euer stands.

King. Kings, from my daughter this I let you know,
That for this twelue-month, shee'le not vndertake
A married life : her reason to her selfe is onely known,
Which from her by no meanes can I get.

2. Knight. May we not get accessse to her (my Lord?)

King. Faith, by no meanes, she hath so strictly Tyed her to her chamber, that t'is impossible :
One twelue Moons more shee'le weare Dianas liuery :
This by the eye of Cynthia hath she vowed,
And on her Virgin honour will not breake it.

3. Knight. Loth to bid farewell, we take our leaues. Exit.

King. So, they are well dispatcht :
Now to my daughters Letter; shee tels me here,
Shee'le wed the stranger Knight,
Or neuer more to view nor day nor light.
T'is well Mistris, your choyce agrees with mine :
I like that well : nay how absolute shee's in't,
Not minding whether I dislike or no.
Well, I do commend her choyce, and will no longer
Haue it be delayed : soft heere he comes,
I must dissemble it.

Per. All fortune to the good Simonides.

King. To you as much : Sir, I am beholding to you,
For your sweet Musicke this last night :
I do protest, my eares were neuer better fedde
With such delightfull pleasing harmonie.

Per. It is your Graces pleasure to commend,
Not my desert.

King. Sir, you are Musickes maister.

Per. The worst of all her Schoollers (my good Lord.)

King. Let me aske you one thing :
What doe you thinke of my daughter sir ?

Per. A most virtuous Princessse.

King. And shee's faire too, is she not?

Per. As a faire day in Sommer : wonderous faire.

King.

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

King. Sir, my Daughter thinks very well of you,
I so well, that you must be her Maister,
And she will be your Scholler; therefore looke to it.

Per. I am vnworthy for her Schoole-master.

King. Shee thinks not so: peruse this writing else.

Per. What's here; a letter, that she loues the knight of Tyre?
Tis the Kings subtiltie to haue my life:

Oh, seeke not to intrappe me, gracious Lord,
A stranger, and distressed Gentleman,
That neuer aymed so hie, to loue your daughter,
But bent all offices to honour her.

King. Thou hast bewicht my daughter,
And thou art a Villaine.

Per. By the Gods I haue not; neuer did thought
Of mine leuie offence; nor neuer did my actions
Yet commence, a deed might gaine her loue,
Or your displeasure.

King. Traytor, thou lyest.

Per. Traytor?

King. I, traytor.

Per. Euen in his throat, vnlesse it be the King,
That calls me Traytor, I returne the lye.

King. Now by the Gods I do applaud his courage.

Per. My actions are as noble as my thoughts,
That neuer relisht of a base discent:

I came vnto your Court for honours cause,

And not to be a Rebelle to her state:

And he that otherwise accountes of mee,

This sword shall prooue, hee's honours enimie.

King. No? here comes my daughter, she can witnesse it.

Enter Thaisa.

Per. Then as you are as vertuous, as faire,

Did ere solícite, or my hand subscribe
To any fillable that made loue to you?

For a more blustering birth had neuer Babe:
Quiet and gentle thy conditions; for
Thou art the rudelyest welcome to this world,
That euer was Princes Child: happy what followes,
Thou hast as chiding a natiuitie,
As Fire, Ayre, Water, Earth, and Heauen can make,

Enter two or three with a Chist.

Ser. So, lift there.

Cer. What's that?

Ser. Sir, euen now did the sea tossē vp vpon our shore
 This Chist; 't is of some wracke.

Cer. Set't downe, let's looke vpon't.

2. Gent. 'T is like a Coffin, sir.

Cer. What ere it be, 't is woondrous heauie;
 Wrench it open straight:

If the Seas Stomacke be orecharg'd with Gold,
 'T is a good constraint of Fortune it belches vpon vs.

2. Gent. 'T is so, my Lord.

Cer. How close 't is caulkt & bottomed, did the sea cast it vp?

56

Ser. I neuer saw so huge a billow sir, as toft it vpon shore.

Cer. Wrench it open soft; it smells most sweetly in my sense?

2. Gent. Most strange.

Cer. Shrowded in Cloth of state, balmed and entreaured with full bagges of Spices, a Passport to Apello, perfect me in the Characters.

Heere

Pericles Prince of Tyre.

*Here I gine to understand,
If ere this Coffin driues aland;
I King Pericles hane lost
This Queene, worth all our mundane cost:
Who finds her, gine her burying,
She was the daughter of a King:
Besides, this Treasure for a fee,
The Gods requite his charitie.*

If thou liuest Pericles, thou hast a heart,
That euer cracks for woe, this chanc'd to night.

2. Gent. Most likely sir.

Cer. Nay certainly to night for looke how fresh she looks
They were too rough, they threw her in the Sea.
Make a Fire within; fetch hither all my Boxes in my Closet,
Death may vsurpe on Nature many houres, and yet
The fire of life kindle againe the ore-prest spirits.
I heard of an Egyptian that had nine houres lien dead,
Who was by good applianee recovered.

Enter one with Napkins and Fire.

Gentlemen, this Queene will liue,
Nature awakes a warme breath out of her;
She hath not bene entraunc'd aboue five houres:
See how she ginnes to blow into lifes flower againe.

1. Gent. The Heauens, through you; encrease our wonder,
And sets vp your fame for euer.

Cer. She is aliue, behold her eye-lids,
Cases to those heauenly iewels which Pericles hath lost,
Begin to part their fringes of bright gold,
The Diamonds of a most prayd water doth appeare,
To make the world twise rich, liue, and make vs weepe.

Could I rage and rore as doth the sea she lies in,
Yet the end must be as tis: my gentle babe Marina,
Whom, for she was borne at sea, I haue named so,
Here I charge your charitie withall; leauing her
The infant of your care, beseeching you to giue her
Princely training, that she may be maner'd as she is borne.

* Cle. Feare not (my Lord) but thinke your Grace,
That fed my Countrie with your Corne, for which,
The peoples prayers dayly fall vpon you, must in your child

The common body by you relieu'd,
Would force me to my dutie: but if to that,
My nature need a spurre, the Gods reuenge it
vpon me and mine, to the end of generation.

Now to Marina bend your mind,
 Whom our fast growing scene must finde
 At Tharsus, and by Cleon traind
 In Mulicks letters, who hath gaind
 Of education all the grace,
 Which makes hie both the art and place
 Of generall wonder: but alacke
 That monster Enuic oft the wracke
 Of earned praise, Marinas life
 Seeke to take off by treasons knife,
 And in this kinde, our Cleon hath
 One daughter and a full grown wench,
 Euen ripe for mariage sight: this Maide
 Hight Phyloten: and it is said
 For certaine in our storie, she Would euer with Marina be.
 Beet when they weaude the sleded silke,
 With fingers long, small, white as milke,
 Or when she would with sharpe needle wound,
 The Cambricke which she made more sound
 By hurting it, or when too'rth Lute
 She sung, and made the night bed mute,
 That still records with mone, or when
 She would with rich and constant pen,
 Vaile to her Mistresse Dian still,
 This Phyloten contends in skill
 With absolute Marina: so
 The Doue of Paphos might with the crow
 Vie feathers white, Marina gets
 All prayes, which are paid as debts,
 And not as giuen, this so darkes
 In Phyloten all gracefull markes,
 That Cleons wife with Enuic rare,
 A present murderer does prepare
 For good Marina, that her daughter

Leon. Come say your prayers.

Mar. What meane you ?

Leon. If you require a little space for prayer, I graunt it, pray, but be not tedious, for the Gods are quicke of care, and I am sworne to doe my worke with haste.

Mar. Why, will you kill me ?

Leon. To satisfie my Ladie.

Mar. Why would shee haue mee kild now ? as I can remember by my troth, I neuer did her hurt in all my life, I neuer spake bad word, nor did ill turne to any liuing creature : Beleeue me I saw, I neuer kild a Mousse, nor hurt a Fly :

Boul. Sir.

Pander. Search the Market narrowly, Metaline is full of gallants, wee lost too much money this mart by being too wenchlesse.

Baud. wee were neuer so much out of Creatures, wee haue but poore three, and they can doe no more then they can doe, and they with continuall action, are euen as good as rotten.

Pander. Therefore lets haue fresh ones what ere we pay for them, if there be not a conscience to bee vsde in cuerie trade, we shall neuer prosper.

Baud. Thou saist true: tis not our bringing vp of poore bastards, as I thinke, I haue brought vp some eleuen.

Boul. I to eleuen, and brought them downe againe, But shall I search the market?

Baud. What else man? the stuffe we haue, a strong winde will blow it to peeces, they are so pittifully sodden.

Pand. Three or foure thousand Chickins were as prettie a proportion to liue quietly, and so giue ouer.

Bawd. Why, to giue ouer I pray you ? Is it a shame to get when we are olde?

Pand. Oh our credite comes not in like the commoditie, nor the commoditie wages not with the daunger: therefore if in our youths we could picke vp some prettie estate, t'were not amisse to keepe our doore harch'r, besides the fore tearmes we stand vpon with the gods, wil be strong with vs for giuing ore.

Bawd. Come, other sorts offend as well as we.

Pand. As well as we, I, and better too, we offend worfe, neither is our profession any trade, It's no calling, but heere comes Boul.

Enter Boul. with the Pirates and Marina.

Boul. Come your wayes my maisters, you say shee's a virgin.

Seyler. O Sir, we doubt it not.

Boul. Master, I haue gone through for this peece you see, if you like her so, if not, I haue lost my earnest.

Bawd. Boul. ha's she anie qualities?

Boul. Shee ha's a good face, speakes well, and ha's excellent good cloathes : theres no farther necessitie of qualities can make her be refuz'd.

Bawd. Why lament you prettie one?

Mar. That I am prettie.

Bawd. Come, the Gods haue done their part in you.

Mer. I accuse them not.

Bawd. You are light into my hands, where you are like to liue.

Mar. The more my fault, to scape his handes, where I was to die.

Bawd. I, and you shall liue in pleasure.

Mar. No.

Bawd. Yes indeed shall you, and tast Gentlemen of all fashions, you shall fare well, you shall haue the difference of all complexions, what doe you stop your cares?

Mer. Are you a woman?

Bawd. What would you haue mee bee, and I bee not a woman?

Mer. An honest woman, or not a woman.

Bawd. Marie whip the Gosseling, I thinke I shall haue something to doe with you, come you'r a young foolish sapling, and must be bowed as I would haue you.

Mer. The Gods defend me.

Boulr. I haue cryde her almost to the number of her haire, I haue drawne her picture with my voice.

Bawd. And I prethee tell me, how dost thou find the inclination of the people, especially of the yonger sort?

Boulr. Faith they listened to me, as they would haue harkened to their fathers testament, there was a Spaniards mouth watred, and he went to bed to her verie description.

Bawd. We shall haue him here to morrow with his best ruffe on.

Boulr. To night, to night, but Mistrisse doe you knowe the French knight, that cowres ethe hams?

Bawd. Who, Monsieur Verollus?

Boulr. I, he, he offered to cut a caper at the proclamation, but he made a groane at it, and swore he would see her to morrow.

Bawd. Well, well, as for him, he brought his discafe hither, here he does but repaire it, I knowe he will come in our shadow, to scatter his crownes in the Sunne.

Boulr. Well, if we had of euerie Nation a trauceller, we should lodge them with this signe.

Bawd. Pray you come hither a while, you haue Fortunes comming vpon you, marke me, you must seeme to doe that fearefully, which you commit willingly, despise profite, where you haue most gaine, to weepe that you liue as ye doe, makes pittie in your Louers seldome, but that pittie begets you a good opinion, and that opinion a meere profite.

Cle. To such proceeding who euer but his approbation added, though not his prince consent, he did not flow from honourable courses.

Dion. Bee it so then, yet none does knowe but you how shee came dead, nor none can knowe Leonine being gone. Shee did disdaine my childe, and stooode betweene her and her fortunes: none woulde looke on her, but cast their gazes on Marinas face, whilest ours was blurred at, and helde a Mawkin not worth the time of day. IV.iv.

Enter Pericles at one doore, with all his traine, Cleon and Dioniza at the other. Cleon shewes Pericles the tombe, whereat Pericles makes lamentation, puts on sack-cloth, and in a mightie passion departs.

Gower. See how beleefe may suffer by fowle shewe,
 This borrowed passion stands for true old woe :
 And Pericles in sorrowe all deuour'd,
 With sighes shot through, and biggest teares ore-showr'd.
 Leaues Tharsus, and againe imbarke, he sweares
 Neuer to wash his face, nor cut his haire :
 Hee put on sackcloth, and to Sea he beares,
 A Tempest which his mortall vessell teares.
 And yet he rides it out, Now please you wit:
 The Epitaph is for Marina writ, by wicked Dioniza,

*The fairest, sweetest, and best lies heere,
 Who withered in her spring of yeare :
 She was of Tyrs the Kings daughter,
 On whom fowle death hath made this slaughter :
 Marina was she call'd, and at her birth,
 That is being proud, swallowed some part at earth :
 Therefore the earth fearing to be ore-flowed,
 Hath Thetis birch-child on the heauens best owed,
 Wherefore she does and sweares shee neuer flint,
 Make raging Battrie vpon shores of flint.*

Pand. Well I had rather then twice the worth of her, shee had nere come heere.

Bawd. Fic, fie vpon her, shee's able to freze the god Priapus, and vndoe a whole generation, we must either get her rauished, or be rid of her, when she should doe for Clytents her fitment, and doe mee the kindenesse of our profession, she has me her quirks, her reasons, her maisters reasons, her prayers, her knees, that shee would make a Paritaine of the diuell, if hee should cheapen a kisse of her.

Boult. Faith I must rauish her, or shee'lle disfurnish vs of all our Caualeses, and make our swearers Priests.

Pand. Now the poxe vpon her greene sicknesse for me.

Bawd. Faith ther's no way to be ridde on't but by the way to the poxe. Here comes the Lord Lyfimachus disguised.

Boult. Wee shoulde haue both Lord and Lowne, if the peeuish baggadge would but giue way to customers.

Enter Lyfimachus.

Lyf. How now, how a douzen of virginities?

Bawd. Now the Gods to blisse your Honour.

Boult. I am glad to see your Honour in good health.

Lyf. You may, so t'is the better for you, that your restorsers stand vpon sound legges, how now? wholsome iniquitie haue you, that a man may deale withall, and defie the Surgeon?

Mar. Prithee tell me one thing first.

Boul. Come now your one thing.

Mar. What canst thou wish thine enemy to be.

Boul. Why, I could wish him to be my master, or rather my mistris.

Mar. Neither of these are so bad as thou art, since they doe better thee in their command, thou hold'st a place for which the painedst seend of hell would not in reputation change: Thou art the damned doore-keeper to euery customer that comes enquiring for his Tib. To the cholerike fistling of euery rogue, thy care is lyable, thy foode is such as hath beene belch't on by infected lungs.

Bo. What wold you haue me do? go to the wars, wold you? where a man may serue 7. yeers for the losse of a leg, & haue not money enough in the end to buy him a wooden one?

Mar. Doe any thing but this thou doest, emptie olde receptacles, or common-shores of filth, serue by indenture, to the common hang-man, any of these wayes are yet better then this: for what thou profess'est, a Baboone could he speake, would owne a name too deere, that the gods would safely deliuer me from this place: here, heers gold for thee, if that thy master would gaine by me, proclaime that I can sing, weaue, sow, & dance, with other vertues, which Ile keep from boast, and will vndertake all these to teach. I doubt not but this populous Cittie will yelde many schollers.

Boul.

*Pericles Prince of Tyre.*IV.vi.

Bowlt. But can you teach all this you speake of?

Mar. Prooue that I cannot, take mee home againe,
And prostitute me to the basest groomer that doeth frequent your house.

Bowlt. Well, I will see what I can doe for thee : if I can place thee I will.

Mar. But amongst honest woman.

Bowlt. Faith my acquaintance lies little among them,
But since my maister and mistris hath bought you, there's no going but by their consent : therefore I will make them acquainted with your purpose, and I doubt not but I shall find them tractable enough. Come Ile doe for thee what I can, come your wayes.

Per. Where were you bred? and how atchieu'd you these indowments which you make more rich to owe?

Mar. If I should tell my hystorie, it would seeme like lies disdained in the reporting.

Per. Prethee speake, falsnesse cannot come from thee, for thou lookest modest as iustice, & thou seemest a Pallas for the crownd truth to dwell in, I wil belecue thee & make senses credit thy relation, to points that seeme impossible, for thou lookest like one I loued indeede: what were thy friends? didst thou not stay when I did push thee backe, which was when I perceiu'd thee that thou camst from good discending.

Mar. So indeed I did.

Per. Report thy parentage, I think thou saidst thou hadst beene tost from wrong to iniurie, and that thou thoughts thy griefs might equall mine, if both were opened.

Per. How, a Kings daughter, and cald Marina?

Mar. You seeld you would belecue me, but not to be a troubler of your peace, I will end here.

Per. But are you flesh and blood?

Haue you a working pulse, and are no Fairie?

Motion well, speake on, where were you borne?

And wherefore cald Marina?

Mar. Cald Marina, for I was borne at sea.

Per. At sea, what mother?

Mar. My mother was the daughter of a King, who died the minute I was borne, as my good Nurse Licherida hath oft deliuered weeping.

Per. O stop there a little, this is the rarest dreame That ere duld sleepe did mocke sad foolcs with all, This cannot be my daughter, buried, well, where were you bred? Ile heare you more too'th bottome of your storie, and neuer interrupt you.

Mar. You scorne, belecue me t'were best I did giue ore.

Per. I will belecue you by the syllable of what you shall deliuer, yet giue me leaue, how came you in these parts? where were you bred?

Mar. The King my father did in Tharsus leaue me, Till cruell Cleon with his wicked wife, Did seeke to murder me: and hauing wooed a villaine, To attempt it, who hauing drawne to doo't, A crew of Pirats came and rescued me, Brought me to Meteline,

Th. 'Twas Hellicanus then.

Per. Still confirmation, imbrace him deere Thaisa, this is hee, now doe I long to heare how you were found? how possiblie preferued? and who to thanke (besides the gods) for this great myracle?

Th. Lord Cerimon, my Lord, this man through whom the Gods haue showne their power, that can from first to last resolute you.

Pe. Reuerent Syr, the gods can haue no mortall officer more like a god then you, will you deliuer how this dead Queene reliues?

Cer. I will my Lord, beseech you first, goe with mee to my house, where shall be showne you all was found with her. How shee came plac'd heere in the Temple, no needfull thing omitted.

Per. Pure Dian blesse thee for thy vision, and will offer night oblations to thee Thaisa, this Prince, the faire betrothed of your daughter, shall marrie her at Pentapolis, and now this ornament makes mee looke dismall, will I clip to forme, and what this fourteene yeeres no razer touch't, to grace thy marriage-day, Ile beautifie.

Th. Lord Cerimon hath letters of good credit. Sir, my fathers dead.

Gower.

In Antiochus and his daughter you haue heard,
Of monstrous lust, the due and iust reward :

In Pericles his Queene, and daughter scene,
Although assail'd with Fortune fierce & keene,

Vertue preferd from fell destructions blast,
Led on by heauen, & crown'd with ioy at last.

In Hellicanus may you well descric;

A figure of truth, of faith and loyaltie :

In reuerent Cerimon there well appeares,

The worth that learned charitie aye weares.

For wicked Cleon, and his wife, when Fame

Had spred his cursed deed, the honor'd name

Of Pericles, to rage the Citie turne,

That him and his they in his Pallace burne :

The gods for murder seem'd to contend,

To punish, although not done, but meant.

So on your Patience euer more attending,

New ioy wait on you, here our play has ending.
